QFlow

The Q is the queue.

Our logo is the letter Q. Look closely and you will see a line of people waiting for their turn. Each part has a meaning:

1. The ring
The letter Q. It is also the place where you get helped, like a clinic desk or a bank counter.

2. The yellow tail
This is you, at the front of the line. Your turn is next.

3. The two small dots
The other people still waiting behind you.

Put together: QFlow moves people forward, one by one, so nobody has to stand in a line.

This is the app icon: the same Q on our blue square.

One rule about yellow

Yellow is only for the tail, because the tail is the person who is next. If yellow shows up in other places, the logo loses its meaning.

SIZES

When the icon is small we leave out the two dots, so the Q stays easy to see.

Protecting our logo (trademark)

A simple guide, not legal advice. A trade mark attorney should do the search and file it for us.

What is a trademark?

A legal right that stops other companies from using our name or logo, or one that looks too much like it. In South Africa it is registered with the CIPC.

Why this logo is easy to protect

- It is original. It is our own shape, not a picture of a queue.
- It works in one colour, so we can register it in black and white and be covered in every colour.
- It is simple, so it looks clear small or big.

What we should register

- The name: the word QFlow, in any font.
- The symbol: the Q on its own, in black and white.
- Optional: the full logo with the name.

Which groups (called classes)

- Class 9: apps and software people download.
- Class 42: software we run online for customers.
- Class 35: queue and appointment management services.

Before we file

- A search has not been done yet. We must check the CIPC trade mark list and the internet for similar logos first.
- Register it in the company's name, QFlow Technologies (Pty) Ltd, not a person's name.
- Keep dated proof of when we first used the logo.
- Write ™ next to the logo for now. Only use ® after the registration is granted.
